November 29, 2006 (FPRC) -- As the Doobie Brothers once said, "Listen to the Music." The continued strong sales of MP3 players for Christmas 2006 is music to the ears of manufacturers such as Apple, Microsoft, and Creative Labs. MP3 players are hot bling this Christmas.

Apples iPod continues to dominate the market. Microsoft has introduced the "Zune" with some unique capabilities, and Creative Labs has several strong selling models.

Apple introduced several new models of iPod this season, including the new iPod Nano. "iPod is a dominant force for Christmas gifts at our web site." said Jeff Young, spokesman for AllAmericanBling.com. "Our top ranked bling is the iPod Shuffle. This is an MP3 player about the size of a quarter. It has 1GB of data storage capability. It is so small it is designed to clip on to your clothes. This makes it perfect to go to the gym with, jog with, go to work with, or just be bling with. The 'bling factor' of the iPod Shuffle is enormous. It looks really cool, and by extension, makes you look and feel cool. That's what bling is all about." said Young.

Microsoft is going to battle with Apple with their freshly introduced "Zune" MP3 player. This device has several innovative features including wireless Zune to Zune sharing of music. There are limits on this such as how long shared music will last on the other shared MP3 player, "But this is still an innovative, bling idea." The spokesman for AllAmericanBling.com said. "Reviews of the new Microsoft MP3 player are mixed. You can see some of the best reviews of the Zune on our web site, including those from consumers who have been using the new MP3 player." Young said. "iPod Reviews have been important to our site, so we wanted to make sure we have lots of reviews of the new Zune too." said Young.
