

Create a Phones Review YouTube Video Competition

is all about you showing off your stuff, as we all know YouTube is the most successful website on the internet for making videos and uploading them for millions of people to see and this is where you can shine and show us and millions of our readers your talents.

January 16, 2007 (FPRC) -- Phones Review is an up and coming site where many readers come everyday to see what is happening in the world of phones & accessories and of which Phones Review is getting updated and new re-vamps are happening all the time to keep up with the future. Phones Review have just started a competition where you now can get involved where you can show your talented side.

The Phones Review Competition is all for fun and the person who makes the best video about mobile phones, home phones or anything to do with phones with Phones Review featured on the video will get their name mentioned and the chance to write their articles for us as well. Basically we all know YouTube the biggest internet site bought by Google where you can upload all your videos for free.

Phones Review want to see you make your own video about Phones Review and upload it on www.youtube.com and then post the url link to where the video is on youtube to Phones Review.

I think this is a fantastic idea because PR is getting to know their readers and now they are interacting with them to make it more interesting than other websites. They already have many posts on great products that is either out now or coming out which is good news and they will be keeping you up to date with press releases as well.

This competition will be a blast and will get you thinking which is better than being bored, try it see what video you come up with you will be surprised what you come up with.
