January 19, 2007 (FPRC) -- A new tool has been announced to help consumers when buying a used car. Mistar Enterprises, LLC has developed The Auto Evaluator, a software program that helps take the frustration and guesswork out of purchasing a used car.

Everyone wants the best deal when purchasing a vehicle and with over 30 million used cars sold in the USA each year, many people are turning to the Internet for information and how-to guides for assistance. Although the World Wide Web is the largest source of information in the world today, most car shopping websites deal mainly with new-car purchases, so the used-car buyer is limited to a few sites that offer tips and warning signs. A new software program, called The Auto Evaluator, gives the consumers the ability to unmask potential problems with the actual vehicle they are looking to purchase. This user-friendly system utilizes a step-by-step computer program with color-coded checklists consumers print out and bring with them to evaluate each vehicle.

The CD is loaded with pictures as examples to help guide consumers through the entire car buying process, from the first phone call, to the bill-of-sale, and everything in between. The program helps to protect consumers from overlooking important aspects about a car prior to purchasing, regardless of their automotive knowledge. "The goal is to provide consumers with a comprehensive and effective technique to help take the guesswork out of buying a used car" said Ronald Mistarz, the President of Mistar Enterprises, LLC. "There is nothing like this on the market today".

The Auto Evaluator is currently available at www.theautoevaluator.net for $14.95 and can be downloaded for instant access, or customers can have the CD shipped to them for an additional $4.95 shipping and handling.

Mistar Enterprises, LLC was founded by Ronald Mistarz, a Certified Auto Sales Manager. The program itself has been in development for over 4 years, with the first beta copy being produced on September 6th, 2003. Since then, Mr. Mistarz has incorporated several unfortunate consumer experiences and has enhanced the program to detect these issues prior to finalizing a sale.
