

Learn How To Write a Book Quickly at March 10 Oklahoma NSA Meeting

Write a book on your topic of expertise in 5-21 days using Dianna Booher's proven 14-step writing process.

February 14, 2007 (FPRC) -- What can speakers, trainers, consultants, and entrepreneurs do to position themselves as “experts” in the marketplace and promote their product or service?

The answer reflects a growing trend in the marketplace: Publish a book. Nothing enhances credibility with colleagues, management, and customers like becoming a published author. Like Suze Orman, Brian Tracy, John Gray, Ken Blanchard, Tony Robbins, Ann Coulter, Stephen Covey, and Phil McGraw, you, too, may find that the recognition and credibility gained through publishing translates into political, social, or financial power.

Dianna Booher, author of more than 40 books with major US publishing houses, has developed a 14-step process for conceptualizing, researching, organizing, drafting, and editing a book—all within 5-21 days. “An insightful article or self-help book gets far more attention than an ad,” says Booher, CEO of a communication training firm serving almost half of the Fortune 500 companies.

Booher will share her systematic writing approach during a session at the monthly Oklahoma Chapter NSA meeting on March 10, 2007, Crowne Plaza Hotel, 2945 Northwest Expressway, Oklahoma City, OK. For a hands-on workshop covering the complete writing process, Dianna offers a three-day publishing event, Get Your Book Published, on April 19-21, 2007 (GetYourBookPublished2007.com).
