

Is This the Type of Society you Want to Reduce our CO2 by 60%?

The Car Party says the Labour Party and the Green Lobby are wrong and attacking the poorest in society in the name of the environment is a way backward not forwards

March 13, 2007 (FPRC) --

The UK Government are intent on the ruination of the lower classes and the worst off (poor) generally by their unrealistic goals of reducing CO2 emissions by 2050.

How does a household reduce its CO2 footprint by 60%?

Easy you get rid of your car, You put your heating system in the refuse bin! Is that enough? Not by a long way I'm afraid you're electrical appliances have to go, yes all of them! No holidays either unless you want to go on a walking and camping holiday. Yes the guys at the ministry are really willing to set back civilization that far. The Labour Government of the UK has obviously lost its collective mind. Maybe you can not afford alternative means of providing electricity, solar cells or a windmill, Maybe you would like to live your life your own way. Within reason not if these political clowns have their way, Listen TONY not something you're that good at is it.

Fed up with listening to the doom and gloom merchants whilst China and America BOOM! Yes we are too so we think it is better to have realistic targets that are achievable and within grasp, therefore we believe we should have a referendum on membership of the EU. Yes Europe wants to turn us into a gigantic wind farm where only the rich can have heating and lighting powered by individual solar panels and wind power.

The Car Party are against wind farms, and any form of attack on the lower classes, the poor the poorest in society, key workers and the low paid those on fixed incomes, Pensioners, The Disabled and the working classes generally. Believe this, Green Taxes are aimed at hurting the less well off first and hardest. Green Parties and greenies generally know that the way to a greener society is to impoverish a large proportion of the worse off in society.

So get ready for the fight for your car, your holiday, your cooker and kettle because a 60% reduction in CO2 means changing your life for the worst to go back in time to becoming primitive, whilst the rich belch out as much pollution as they please. Society will be horse drawn and believe this! This is what the greenies want!
