

New Web Site Offers Information on Breast Augmentation and Breast Enlargement

The FDA approval of silicone breast implants has led to some confusion on the part of potential breast augmentation patients. One Beverly Hills plastic surgery center has created a Breast Augmentation Information Center to provide information about all aspects of breast augmentation.

March 21, 2007 (FPRC) --

Rodeo Drive Plastic Surgery, located on Rodeo Drive in Beverly Hills, does a large number of breast augmentation procedures, also known as breast implants and breast enlargement. Dr. Lloyd Krieger, the founder and medical director of Rodeo Drive Plastic Surgery, notes that the procedure can be somewhat confusing to patients. There are different types of implants, different incisions that can be used, and different anatomic locations where the implants can be placed.

Krieger wants his patients to make informed decisions. To that end, this California breast augmentation surgeon has created a Breast Augmentation Information Center. This information clearinghouse compiles a great deal of information all in one place. The information is detailed and comprehensive. Silicone gel implants recently received FDA approval for usage in both reconstructive and cosmetic breast surgery, so much of the information here is especially topical.

At the Breast Augmentation Information Center, people can read about the types of breast implants available, the breast augmentation procedure itself, safety and warranty issues, silicone implant issues including their history and description, places where you can get more information, view before and after Beverly Hills breast augmentation breast augmentation photos, and more. Krieger notes his hope that this information proves useful as people consider breast augmentation in Beverly Hills.

About Dr. Krieger: Dr. Krieger is a plastic surgeon California who was educated at Stanford University and the University of Chicago. He completed his residencies in general surgery and plastic surgery at UCLA Medical Center and maintains operating privileges at UCLA and Cedars-Sinai medical centers. He has established a unique professional network to offer his patients a lifestyle overhaul along with their surgery, which may include a new wardrobe at nearby Rodeo Drive shops, a new hairstyle, spa treatments or a new fitness regime.

About Rodeo Drive Plastic Surgery: Nestled next to Chanel, Dior and Tiffany & Co., Rodeo Drive Plastic Surgery is the only plastic surgery center on Rodeo Drive. The posh 5,000 square foot facility looks more like a boutique than a doctor's office. This center specializes in breast implants in Los Angeles.

Rodeo Drive Plastic Surgery's on-site surgery center is accredited by AAAHC and Medicare and the full-sized operating rooms and recovery suites are equipped with the latest equipment and fully staffed at all times to provide the best patient care possible. "We designed our center to combine the convenience of storefront shopping with what I call the Four Seasons treatment," Dr. Krieger concludes. "Because cosmetic surgery is elective, people are looking for a first-class experience, and that's what we offer at our center." California cosmetic surgery is practiced in a cutting edge environment and the center seeks to define the best in service and latest techniques in plastic surgery. This of course includes Los Angeles breast implants. The center also specializes in Los Angeles liposuction, Los Angeles tummy tuck, and all California plastic surgery procedures.
