

The Rodeo Drive Mommy Makeover

Rodeo Drive Plastic Surgery, the first and only plastic surgery on the world-famous street, unveils its Rodeo Drive Mommy Makeover.

May 19, 2007 (FPRC) --

Many of today's moms don't feel they should sacrifice the way they look just because they've had children. At Rodeo Drive Plastic Surgery in Beverly Hills, plastic surgeon Dr. Lloyd Krieger specializes in patients in their 20s, 30s and 40s. This often includes women who have had babies. "These women usually want their tummies and breasts back the way they looked before pregnancy," notes Dr. Krieger.

Dr. Krieger, who has been featured in Fortune, The New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Univision, Access Hollywood and other media, does many tummy tucks and breast lifts for these patients. Often he places small breast implants - not so much to increase size, but to give these women back the volume in the breasts that they lost during and after pregnancy. In addition to a breast augmentation Beverly Hills, he might do a formal mastopexy or breast lift. Sometimes he also does liposuction. This popular procedure has come to be known as "The Rodeo Drive Mommy Makeover." "We've done these Mommy Makeovers on women as young as 22 and as old as 64," says Dr. Krieger.

Whenever Dr. Krieger does a California tummy tuck as part of the Mommy Makeover, he includes his well-known Rodeo Drive Belly Button with the procedure. This helps create a nice-looking midriff.

Dr. Krieger notes that the Mommy Makeover can sometimes be done during one surgery. Other times it is best to break the procedure up over more than one day. The patient's body type and overall health helps us determine the best approach. Dr. Krieger takes many steps to assure both minimal pain and maximum safety during his procedures, including the use of long-acting local anesthetic as part of the surgery and doing all his work in the on-site Medical-certified surgery center.

Many of Rodeo Drive Plastic Surgery's patients for the Mommy Makeover travel from out of town seeking Los Angeles plastic surgery. The Rodeo Drive staff can help with the planning of these sorts of trips.

About Dr. Krieger: Dr. Krieger offers plastic surgery California was educated at Stanford University and the University of Chicago and completed his residency at UCLA. He maintains operating privileges at UCLA and Cedars-Sinai medical centers. Rodeo Drive Plastic Surgery has established a unique professional network to offer his patients a lifestyle overhaul along with their surgery, which may include a new wardrobe at nearby Rodeo Drive shops, a new hairstyle, spa treatments or a new fitness regime. These perks are offered to everyone, not just those seeking celebrity plastic surgery.

About Rodeo Drive Plastic Surgery: This California plastic surgery center, Nestled next to Chanel, Dior and Tiffany & Co., is the only plastic surgery center on Rodeo Drive. The posh 5,000 square foot facility looks more like a boutique than a doctor's office.

Rodeo Drive Plastic Surgery is accredited by AAAHC and Medicare and the full-sized operating rooms and recovery suites are equipped with the latest equipment and fully staffed at all times to provide the best patient care possible. "We designed our center to combine the convenience of storefront shopping with what I call the Four Seasons treatment," Dr. Krieger concludes. "Because cosmetic surgery is elective, people are looking for a first-class experience, and that's what we offer at our center."
