

DiscussEconomics Updates Public Economic Forums and Unveil Finance Blog

DiscussEconomics.com, an online leader in economic and personal finance discussion and news, announced the emergence of their updated public consumer forum, and economic and financial news blog.

June 13, 2007 (FPRC) -- Financially savvy searchers can now visit DiscussEconomics and read public discussions and articles on a variety of financial and economics topics. Users can receive the latest news releases in the exciting economics blog, participate in discussions, and offer questions of their own in the consumer forums.

"We are very excited with our new focus. Anybody looking for economic or financial information can now visit the web site and find what the current information and news they're looking for quickly," said Barry Nagassar, owner and operator of DiscussEconomics.com.

"We are pleased to announce the increase in our qualified contributors to our financial blog section. Now there is more fresh and useful content than ever before. But that's not all, we are also improving the way visitors access our content. Users can integrate our finance blog into their personal online news readers for instant review online or offline. DiscussEconomics is also keeping with the latest mobile trends. Our economic and finance web blog is now accessible from all wireless handheld devices. New financial and economic information arrives fresh daily. We offer a great way for users to stay current and become informed with the broader economy or their specific financial situations."

Barry continued to discuss the range of finance material offered by DiscussEconomics, "We are happy to introduce more qualified economists who are contributing financial articles for our blog. These individuals also routinely answer questions on our public economic forums where all sorts of questions are asked. The information is both relevant to introductory readers, but also incorporates the type of quality and accuracy not found on free economic and financial message boards."

News and discussion topics now include a wide range of personal finance categories like financial investments, banking questions, insurance choices, and debt management. Economic categories cover broader market questions like energy and oil prices, interest rates, housing markets, financial markets, micro and macroeconomic topics, economic indicators, and even a number of assignments questions posed by students. Both the financial blog and economic forums are now fully operational.
