San Francisco (FPRC) July 31, 2007 (FPRC) -- The phenomenon of streaming web video is no longer just for emails, YouTube, and music videos. Savvy online advertisers are using online video advertising to add a powerful third dimension to their classified ads.

FeaturePosting.com recently launched an online portal offering free video advertising for real estate listings. FeaturePosting's free option allows users to upload up to 10 minutes of make your own streaming video to the site, resulting in on-demand-video-tours of properties for prospective buyers.

"Video does what text and photos cannot," said Riggies Tang, Founder and President of FeaturePosting.com. "Video meets the buyer at the door and gives them an actual walkthrough of the property," said Tang.

FeaturePosting.com also offers users paid options including upgrades to featured banners and targeted locations. "Our customers can choose to list by region or city to make their listings even more powerful," said Tang.

Although online video advertising may be a very new concept to some advertisers, Tang said most new customers are amazed by the way web video marketing enhances the effectiveness of their listings. "Our service is a way to make your listings stand out with a livelier and more direct style," he said.

Currently focused on advertising options for real estate, FeaturePosting.com plans to add more listing categories and various locations in order to create an expanded community model with international appeal. "We plan to include listings for automobiles, business services, and jobs announcements around the world," said Tang.
