New, Global talent, freelance site helps US small business owners to lower payroll, increase productivity and creativeness without breaking the bank.

November 13, 2007 (FPRC) -- San Francisco Bay Area, California, US. --Freeleancers2go.com, a new web site, has launched a global talent search marketplace for matching Employers and Freelancers electronically..

The easy to use site, benefits both, the small business owner / individuals, as well as the independent freelancer, by providing a mutual place for business where contract work can be posted, awarded to a freelancer and then paid for through an escrowed account.

The site uses an auction platform that automatically promotes competitive bidding for projects.

Categories of skills include, everything from sewing to computer programming to copy write, legal services, design, online customer service, link building to photography.

After, service seekers post their projects, including details and expectations about a project, freelancers can ask questions and receive answers, on the project discussion board.

The service seeker then chooses the service provider/freelancer that they feel is best suited for the job. The system automatically notifies the selected freelancer that he has been selected to complete the project.

Once the project is completed, the service seeker pays the freelancer/service provider, and they are invited to rate and write reviews on each other.

The feedback process serves as a reference for newcomers, Employers as well as Freelancers.

Freelancers can develop and maintain a profile/resume for Employers to browse. The site has the ability to search for projects using keywords or skills and will automatically notify a Freelancer when a project is posted that matches his skills.

The freelances2go site, maintains an online account of all financial transactions and can serve as an accounting system for serious service providers and freelancers. One of the more popular online banking system is used for monetary transactions and includes the ability to withdraw funds or add funds for the payment of services.

Registration is necessary for service providers as well as service providers. There is no cost to register. Freelancers pay a 10% administrative fee on all completed projects and Employers can post contract work opportunities for free, or pay a small fee to have their projects "featured."
