

Social Sciences Net, LLC Launches CancerSupportNet.com.

Social Sciences Net, LLC, a social media incubator that delivers vertical social networks, today announced the release of the Cancer Support Network, an online cancer support group and research library located at <http://www.cancersupportnet.com>.

January 16, 2008 (FPRC) -- Cancer patients, survivors, friends and family of those afflicted with cancer, will now benefit from a new "one stop" destination on the Internet allowing them to collaborate and research information on cancer, treatments, side effects, and more.

Advantages for users of of the Cancer Support Network include:

- A member's only cancer research library
- Peer collaboration through chat rooms, email, and Instant Messaging,
- Friend lists, blogging, profile comments,
- Your own URL to share with friends and family
(www.cancersupportnet.com/profile\_name)

The CancerSupportNet.com is a social network with the sole purpose of providing a collaboration and research platform for those wishing to learn more about the disease and treatments of different cancers. Users simply create their profile when they sign up and they can begin blogging, researching, searching for others, and collaborating. The service is free for users, and is ad-supported for scaling the network as more users join.

"We saw a clear need in the community for a resource that allowed those to connect locally or globally to share information, learn from one another, and to provide a single Internet source for research as well," said Jack Brandt, President for Social Sciences Net, LLC.

Statistics show that 80 percent of Internet users have searched for medical information online, for themselves or another person according to the Pew Internet Life Project. The Cancer Support Network was created to enhance their research also giving them a community they could thrive in.

While the Cancer Support Network is a social network, it differs from other social sites because it's focused on one mission: to provide a feature rich platform so that users can effectively express themselves while researching and connecting with others like them.

About Social Sciences Net and Cancersupportnet.com

Social Sciences Net, LLC is a contemporary developer of vertical social communities in the health and disease category. We provide feature rich, innovative web based social solutions to enable those across the globe to build personal networks of friends who are familiar with the same or similar experience of the member. We hope the communities our members build will improve their mental and physical quality of life.

Social Sciences Net, LLC is a startup organization dedicated to developing web based social solutions for those with physical and mental life threatening diseases. We plan on releasing several other social networks in addition to CancerSupportNet.com in the coming months related to Diabetes, Asthma, Depression, HIV/AIDS, with more to come as we grow.

To reach Social Sciences Net, LLC for more information, you can call 201.355.0010 or write to Social Sciences Net, LLC at info@socialsciencesnet.com or visit their website at www.socialsciencesnet.com.

Contact Information

For more information contact Jack Brandt, President of Social Sciences Net, LLC (<http://www.cancersupportnet.com>)
201.355.0010

Keywords

cancer
cancer support group
social network

You can read this press release online here