

How to Be Your Own Estate Agent

Prospective home sellers can now gain free access to an informative new 'Webook' - 'How to be your own Estate Agent'...

January 30, 2008 (FPRC) -- "How to be your own estate agent", will guide you through each step along the way to selling your property. It will help you to understand the various procedures involved and provide you with the rare opportunity of cutting out the middle-man. Not only will you save thousands of pounds, but you will also:

- Gain a unique insight into how the property market works from an estate agent's perspective
- Understand how to deal with solicitors and their enquiries
- Learn how to attract the highest offers
- Master the art of communicating constructively with a wide range of people.

Visitors can read the whole book for free online, or download a PDF from the online shop for future reference.

Tony Booth is an experienced estate agent who had his own practice in the north-west of England. He is an Associate Member of the National Association of Estate Agents and has been a successful private sector investor for many years.

On the Webooks website, users can read the author's blog, chat to other prospective expats in the forum and find useful websites in the directory.

With over 200 Webooks set to go online during the remainder of 2008, visitors can also sign up to the newsletter to receive alerts when new titles are added to the online library.
