March 15, 2008 (FPRC) -- Article Expose announced today that it is currently accepting article submissions for its directory. Sporting a wide variety of categories, this directory is designed for new as well as experienced writers. This is a well-organized, user-friendly website that is guaranteed to increase exposure for websites, blogs, products or services.

Geared to build a wealth of articles for the Internet community, these articles are both original and well-written.

While most directories require that writers submit a perfect article, Article Expose helps get articles up-to-snuff in order to be published.

Whether they are working with experienced article writers currently writing a feature article or newspaper article for website exposure, or new writers where this is a first foray into the article writing world, Article Expose editors will accept each submission on merit and edit them for grammar and spelling.

They are geared to help new writers as well as offer a nice interface for experienced writers. Article Expose's unique angle on building quality web-content makes them different in the overall directory industry - first, they want your expertise and passion on a topic, then they want you to do your best at writing it up into an article that you can share across the web.

Article directories provide a valuable, niche service and information hub. Most webmasters are looking for unique, interesting content to add to their website. Readers and web surfers are looking for information on specific topics. Writers are looking for exposure.

Article directories bring all of that together into hubs where people can find both informational and entertaining article content. Links and content are what drive the Internet community, and website owners are always looking for ways to improve and expand their website content for their readership.

If you can provide a different angle on anything from bird watching to agriculture, you are a good prospect for writing a great article.

Publishing professional and author/filmmaker Barry Sheppard is the owner and editor of Article Expose. He has written and published many books with hundreds of reviews in newspapers, TV and radio. He is now concentrating on eBook writing/publishing and starting his own television station.

Webmasters looking for content will find Article Expose a valuable resource that is growing daily. Fledgling writers will find that this a great article directory. While there are other larger directories, if you are just getting started, Article Expose is the perfect place to start.

Experienced writers will also receive extra exposure by writing for Article Expose. there is an RSS feed to keep you informed of new articles as they are submitted.
