

New Job Website, eJobWire.com, Officially Launches To Serve All Industries.

With job postings on eJobWire.com, employers can reach targeted demographics of job seekers who represent a highly diverse and educated workforce interested in executive, non-executive, middle-income jobs in traditional as well as skilled and hourly positions.

April 16, 2008 (FPRC) -- Sterling, VA - Today marks the official launch of eJobWire.com, a job website with superior functionality and ease of use, after several months of web development and beta testing. eJobWire combines a very easy to use interface with powerful functionality to produce a superior employment website for both job seekers and employers. eJobWire is a service of PressMediaWire.com a leading online press release distributions service provider.

With job postings on eJobWire.com, employers can reach targeted demographics of job seekers who represent a highly diverse and educated workforce interested in executive, non-executive, middle-income jobs in traditional as well as skilled and hourly positions. eJobWire give employers the ability to list multiple jobs with just one upload. The site offers employers the ability to set their privacy setting during its free registration. Functions like the ability to search resumes, update billing and check billing histories are available to all employers. All jobs publish immediately. eJobWire serves all business levels and all industries.

Job seekers have the ease to upload up to 3 resumes for employers to view and contact them. Individuals who need special assistance with creating professional resumes can utilize the sites resume wizard to create one fast and free of charge. This process is much easier and quicker than on other job websites. Job seekers can directly apply for jobs and also save jobs easily for future references. Job seekers can use various methods to search for their dream jobs by categories, location and keyword relevance. "We are glad to launch eJobWire.com to fill a void in the career market left by high-priced posting rates and to help jump start the spring hiring season and beyond" said Isaac Aboagye, Founder and CEO, PressMediaWire, Inc.

eJobWire uses a credit system for payment which also makes it easy to purchase jobs and resume access. With job postings starting at $25, eJobWire makes it affordable to all companies without exhausting their budgets. The site is linked to heavy traffic sites like PressMediaWire.com, its parent company, FindTheSearch.com, a small search engine and link popularity website and NewsNet360.com which provides real-time news to online readers.
