All-Stock-Photography.com launches new marketing approach with 50,000 subject-specific pages in the $3 billion stock photography industry

June 19, 2008 (FPRC) -- All-Stock-Photography.com (<http://www.All-Stock-Photography.com>) has launched. Part of a fresh, new approach to stock photography marketing, All Stock Photography is a global information hub for visual content that directs users to the most appropriate sources per subject from the best photography providers. Sources include the top public domain, free, low-cost, subscription, royalty-free and rights-managed providers of stock photography.

Each subject-specific page of All Stock Photography highlights a selection of photos per topic. Sources are edited from hundreds of stock photography agencies and creators worldwide to assemble the strongest alternatives for each subject, which saves time. Using proprietary tools that accurately match the photography available to the requests of each user, All Stock Photography also enables direct search of a wide variety of photography collections with links to an approved licensing agent for each of the rights holders. Prices range from free to prestige pricing for the highest quality stock photography.

All Stock Photography launches with 50,000 web pages that are subject-specific. New subjects are added on a regular schedule, based on a comparison of topics searched and photography available. Part of a new marketing strategy created by Extreme-Niche-Marketing.com (<http://www.Extreme-Niche-Marketing.com>), the All Stock Photography web site is supported by advertising and sponsorship revenue.

All-Stock-Photography.com is a member site of StockPhotoFinder.com (<http://www.StockPhotoFinder.com>), the stock photo search engine. New York based StockPhotoFinder.com, Inc. searches 2 billion stock photos, illustrations, footage and video at its various white label, customized, corporate and public search engines and web sites.
