

Parents Can Now Search For Homeschool Curriculum Based On Learning Style

Homeschoolingbooks.com has a range of homeschooling supplies that cater to the different learning styles of children.

July 30, 2008 (FPRC) -- FENTON, MI -- Homeschoolingbooks.com, an online retailer of custom and brand name curriculum for preschool homeschool parents through high school homeschool, is one of the first in only a handful of homeschooling companies to recognize that each child has a different learning style.

'Our many years of experience working in the homeschooling industry have taught us that every child learns differently. We have studied much of the research surrounding the different learning styles and developed a range of home school supplies and curriculum to cater to them', says William P. Hoetger, owner of Homeschooling Books.com (<http://www.homeschoolingbooks.com>).

The importance of catering to the different learning styles of children in all schooling types can greatly affect the rate at which a child learns. 'Understanding a child's learning style is absolutely vital to successful homeschooling. A child who learns visually will need different homeschooling supplies than a child who learns in a tactile-kinesthetic manner,' said Hoetger.

That is why Homeschoolingbooks.com (<http://www.homeschoolingbooks.com>) felt it was important to create an online resource center to aid parents in determining their child's learning style and then search for curriculum for homeschool based on that individual style.

The Learning Styles Set is an invaluable resource for parents in their journey though Christian home schooling. The set contains four publications including How to Teach So They Can Learn, Discovery Zone, Navigating through Homeschooling Waters, and Navigation Compass. Additionally, there is a quick-start guide to get parents growing their children's knowledge faster.

Once the learning style of the child is known, the parent can then search the Homeschoolingbooks.com curricula and homeschooling supplies that are specific to each particular learning style.

'The Learning Profile Search is a unique way of searching for audio, written, or other teaching resources. The search prompts the parent to enter the four aspects of learning style of the child including Modalities, Thinking Styles, Personalities, and Expression. The analytical tool will then match the appropriate learning styles resource for each topic or subject area, according to age,' explains Hoetger.

The Learning Styles Set, homeschool textbooks, and other curriculum for homeschooling high school and preschool age children are offered for purchase online at discounted prices.
