

Children's Christmas Book Answers The Age Old Question: How Does Santa Deliver Presents If There Is No Chimney?

Robert Bernardini's new children's Christmas story The Crystal and the Keyhole --Santa's Magic Secret, answers the question kids throughout the world ponder... How are presents delivered if there is no chimney for Santa?

August 19, 2008 (FPRC) -- What child hasn't wondered how the presents get under the tree if there is no chimney for Santa? Little Jackie, the main character of 'The Crystal and the Keyhole' is no different - and he's determined to find out!

While waiting under the Christmas tree on Christmas Eve, he's surprised by a bright rainbow of light that explodes through the keyhole of his front door. Two cute and ambitious elves, Katie and Ben, grow out of the light and commence putting presents under the tree.

When Jackie befriends them, he learns that with the help of their magic crystal, they can get into houses that Santa can't.

When they get ready to leave, Katie pulls out the crystal, "And together they said three times in a hush, Merry Christmas to all, and to all peace and love."

This heart-warming children's Christmas story by Robert Bernardini will enchant young and old alike with its sincere message, brilliant illustrations and surprising ending. 'The Crystal and the Keyhole' gives parents an answer to their youngsters questions about how the presents are delivered when there is no chimney!
