Tramrail Material Handling launches new site and offers industrial hoist and crane parts along with material handling equipment

August 21, 2008 (FPRC) -- Tramrail Material Handling launches new site and offers industrial hoist and crane parts along with material handling equipment.

TRAMRAIL Material Handling, INC. marketing approach is to develop material handling from an extensive line of products represented by the Company, which are best suited to the application at hand.

Our in-house personnel can design, manufacture, procure, and install systems tailored to the needs of our customer. Our personnel have individual expertise in cranes, monorails, industrial hoist and specialty handling equipment.

Our approach to product application considers the best method of handling and orientation, from which a material handling product is selected. This assures an unbiased, 'best view' approach to the challenge at hand, rather than attempting to fit a material handling product to an application.

Our broad diversity of personnel allows us to complete each project with our own specialists, rather than sub-contracting portions of the work to others. This assures smoother start-ups and encourages the teamwork essential to project completion.

Understand that we can provide complete electrical and mechanical interfaces to other equipment within your facility, and we can provide all the necessary control logic to drive the systems we sell.

Tramrail Material Handling has just recently launched a revised website that helps our potential customers see the scope of our products and expertise. Furthermore we now have a contact/quoting system in place to allow customers to order spare and replacement parts for industrial hoist and cranes. Our replacement and spare parts lines include Acco Hoist, Budgit Hoist, Demag Crane parts, Shaw Box Hoist parts, and Yale Hoist Parts to name a few.
