

Golf Inc. Launches New International Web Site

Golf Inc. launched their newly designed interactive web site, www.golfincmagazine.com, on Monday Nov 6, 2008.

November 10, 2008 (FPRC) -- Golf Inc.'s new web site, www.golfincmagazine.com, will give the visitor access to the latest news about what's happening in the U.S. and international golf industry, what golf projects are in the works around the globe, and which courses have recently been sold.

It can all be found on www.golfincmagazine.com, the newly upgraded Web site for the global golf industry's No. 1 business magazine.

In addition to regularly updated news stories focused on the people and companies making news in the golf industry, the Web site will offer articles on what's going on in global golf development and the latest financial and sales transactions.

There also will be exclusive articles found only on the Web site.

One additional special new feature is a Critical Issues Blog, with top industry leaders offering their opinions on the major topics of the day that are impacting golf owners, operators and developers. Readers also will be able to offer their own responses and share their views on a feedback page.

The site also allows the visitor access to current and past issues of Golf Inc. with the ability to search key words within back issues and the web site.

The new interactive site also allows the visitor to rate and comment on each story as well as provide subscriber services to Golf Inc.'s digital and print subscribers.

To view the web site visit www.golfincmagazine.com.
