November 29, 2008 (FPRC) -- Before you do your holiday shopping, you might first want to first find out what the New York Investing meetup has to say at its December 4th meeting.

Organizer and financial blogger, Daryl Montgomery, will be giving a talk on economic predictions for 2009. His previous talk on the economy for 2008 given last December proved to be highly accurate and became a widely watched You Tube video.

The New York Investing meetup also predicted the current credit crisis in July 2007.

The New York Investing meetup is a volunteer investment educational group with almost 2000 members – including some of the sharpest minds in the metro area. It provides unbiased stock market viewpoints from independent traders and successful investors.

“Refreshingly intelligent analysis that brushes away the cobwebs” is how long-time member and full-time trader, Robert Rubin, describes it. Members that heeded its advice got out of the stock market when the media pundits and brokers were telling their clients to stay in.

Summing up the group’s outstanding performance in this difficult investing climate, Sheila Saunders, former leader of another major investing group stated succinctly, “The New York Investing meetup is the profitable alternative to Wall Street hype.”

Membership in the group is free and is open to anyone over 18. The group does not sell anything. “This is one of the best deals in New York – or anywhere for that matter”, says Assistant organizer Steve Cheung. “Everyone interested in learning about the stock market and the economy is encouraged to join”.

For those who don’t live in the New York metro area, the information will be blogged in the days following the meeting and a video will be released by the end of December. For more information or to RSVP to the meeting, please go to: <http://investing.meetup.com/21>.
