

AEX Commercial Financing Group Lowers Fees and Expands Business Consulting Practice

AEX Commercial Financing Group has recently lowered their fees and expanded their business consulting activities in response to a growing demand by business owners for specialized assistance to deal with complicated business finance procedures and problematic lenders. The timely AEX action is designed to give small businesses throughout the United States affordable and effective help for dealing with the recent turmoil in commercial credit and financial markets.

May 13, 2009 (FPRC) --

AEX Commercial Financing Group is lowering their fees and devoting increased business consulting efforts to help small business owners cope with a confusing and frustrating commercial lending climate. The scope of business finance consulting assignments to be undertaken by AEX will cover the most troublesome commercial mortgage and commercial loan issues currently confronting borrowers. AEX Commercial Financing Group is announcing an immediate small business consulting emphasis on several areas of special interest to business owners. Three of these priority items are avoiding problems with SBA loans, identifying new sources for working capital and refinancing business debt.

According to Stephen Bush, Founder and Chief Executive Officer for AEX, "Most small business finance programs continue to be negatively impacted by ongoing disruptions in credit and financial markets. In order to immediately help business owners resolve many business financing complications that have emerged during the recent financial crisis, AEX Commercial Financing Group is increasing efforts to ensure that we will be able to assist as much as possible. In order to make AEX commercial loan and business consulting services more affordable for small businesses, we have reduced our fees substantially. We have also eliminated our business loan officer training program to allow us to spend much more time with business borrower clients on individualized commercial finance consulting."

AEX publishes a comprehensive free resource, The Working Capital Journal, which should be helpful to most commercial borrowers. AEX Commercial Financing Group is based in Ohio and provides specialized help for working capital financing, business cash advances and commercial mortgage loans throughout the United States. Please contact Stephen Bush at AEX for more details and to obtain candid business finance advice.
