

Garden Spot Village Seeks It's 'Fortunate 14' Retirement Community Residents

The adjustment in the housing market has created a unique opportunity for 14 retirees seeking immediate residence in the premier Pennsylvania retirement community, Garden Spot Village.

July 3, 2009 (FPRC) -- New Holland, PA - The adjustment in the housing market has created a unique opportunity for 14 retirees seeking immediate residence in the premier Pennsylvania retirement community, Garden Spot Village. While potential Garden Spot Village residents are normally placed on a waiting list, the community is currently accepting residents to move in to its final 14 two-bedroom, two-bathroom apartments with no wait time.

"This adjustment in the housing market presents a unique opportunity for those seeking a welcoming and exciting retirement community. Normally, the waiting list for these special apartments is several years long. But with the economy, the amenities and beauty of Garden Spot Village are available without the wait, said Scott Miller, Director of Marketing at Garden Spot Village.

Because of this unique opportunity, the Garden Spot Village team has named these future residents 'The Fortunate 14.' These lucky few will get an excellent quality apartment with no wait at excellent value.

But even without the value rush brought on by the recession, living in Garden Spot Village is a reward in and of itself for those 62 and better. The grounds are lushly decorated and with gardens and common areas for relaxation and participation in the communities many social activities. Generous square footage and thoughtful material details that further boost the value of the residence.

Garden Spot Village invites potential residents to tour the floor plans and spend time in the community by providing a free overnight stay for out of town guests. A top-floor guest suite is made available, complete with tours, information, and a free meal at one of several restaurants.
