

General Aire, Aprilaire, & Skuttle, Air Quality Parts Retailer Empowers DIYers To Bypass Middlemen

Popular indoor air quality parts retailer, On Time Mall has relaunched its popular website to further empower consumers. With enhanced search functionality, thousands of product images, and how-to guides, On Time Mall give consumers direct access to hard to find air quality parts once only available through expensive contractors.

September 24, 2009 (FPRC) -- PHOENIX, AZ – Leading indoor air quality parts retailer, On Time Mall has announced the launch of its newly refurbished consumer friendly website.

The re-launch of the website represents a shift in the home repair industry that gives power back to the consumer. Having direct access to parts gives consumers a power that has previously been coveted by contractors. Armed with easy access to hard-to-find parts and detailed repair information, homeowners can save by simply replacing a small part rather than calling an expensive contractor.

"As a former contractor, I was well aware that consumers could do and wanted to do simple repairs themselves -- but contractors kept access to parts and the knowledge away from the do-it-yourselfer. My goal has always been to empower the individual, says Jay Guliano, Founder of On Time Mall.

"For 10 years, On Time Mall has made thousands of parts easily available to everyone. With our new easy-to-use website, air quality parts and industrial controls are more easily accessible than ever before."

On Time Mall is one of the largest indoor air-quality parts houses, stocking thousands of parts from over 100 top quality brands including Skuttle, General Aire, Aprilaire, Honeywell, Nortec, and many other hard to find parts. Founded by former contractor Jay Guliano, the company gives consumers a chance to source their own parts -- allowing them to do repairs themselves rather than hiring a contractor.

The new website allows consumers to search products by manufacturer name, part type, or model number. Each product has been photographed from numerous angles so that customers can thoroughly examine parts before they purchase.

"Most companies focus on the contractor but we value the DIY consumer who wants to save on costs and do it themselves. Customers can even call our 800 number and speak to a qualified technician who will guide and instruct them on how to install the parts they have purchased. We offer top quality technical advice that contractors charge hundreds of dollars for -- at no cost. In today's economy, consumers are looking for ways to make serious cost reductions -- and our goal is to empower them to do so," says Guliano.
