

Army Jobs Website, Army.net Offers 2 Free Bonus Reports To Army Career Hopefuls

US Army jobs website, Army.net is offering two free bonus reports to those who want to learn more about serving in the US Army.

September 24, 2009 (FPRC) -- LA QUINTA, CA – Leading Army jobs and information website, Army.net is offering two free bonus reports to individuals considering a career in the US Army.

The first Army bonus report is titled '5 Tips for Getting the Best School or Job' and provides detailed and comprehensive information about enlistment and jobs in the military. The report provides five tips on how to get the best school or job for maximizing an individual's potential and one which will prove to be beneficial in the long term.

The second bonus report is titled 'Your First Meeting with a Recruiter' and is an excerpt from the book - 'Guide to Joining the Military' by Scott Ostrow. The report seeks to educate the general public about military recruiters, what they do, how they scout for applicants and what they can and cannot promise. It is a concise but comprehensive look into the military recruiting world.

"If you are interested in an army career, these two bonus reports are an excellent place to get some preliminary information about the military. They will not make your decision for you but they will give you plenty of information that will be helpful while you're trying to plan an army career," says Larry Fowler of Army.net.

Army.net is a leading careers and recruitment website for the US Army. The site provides comprehensive information about military job and career opportunities and gives army career hopefuls access to a military job board as well. While the site provides detailed Army enlistment information for those interested, it is not limited to enlistment alone and showcases a range of military career opportunities in fields as varied as arts and media, IT, combat, law, and legal enforcement, intelligence and support for administration and combat.

The two free bonus reports offered by Army.net can be easily accessed via the home page of the site. A quick online registration process yields access to the two reports which can be downloaded in PDF format and saved for later viewing as well. In addition to the two bonus reports, a brochure with navy information is also available for download.

"Most people are surprised at the sheer number and types of Army jobs available. Nearly every civilian job title is also available in to those in the Army -- and all of the incredible health, education, and housing benefits that those in the military enjoy," concludes Fowler.

For those interested in learning more about the health care Army.net has also published an informational report titled " Considering the Army? A Guide To The Unmatched Military Medical Benefits" available at: <http://hubpages.com/hub/Considering-the-Army-A-Guide-To-The-Unmatched-Military-Medical-Benefits>.

About Army.net:

Army.net is a recruitment and careers website for the US Army. The US Army is the largest branch of the military in the United States. The site provides information about career opportunities in the army and features job openings in a variety of fields within the military. Information about military enlistment is also available.

Contact Information

For more information contact Christine O’Kelly of Army.net (<http://www.army.net>)
888-451-4213

Keywords

Army jobs

Army

US Army

You can read this press release online here