October 13, 2009 (FPRC) -- According to the results of a poll carried out by the leading dog lovers dating site www.doglover.biz 72.73% of its members who voted would travel to the ends of the earth to find love.

Of the remainder 9.09% would travel anywhere within their own country, 9.09% within their own state and 9.09% would stick to their home town. Derek Collinson, who founded www.doglover.biz 4 years ago, believes that this shows that his dog lover members are very romantic. He also believes that www.doglover.biz is a better choice for dog lovers seeking soul mates than one of the big mainstream online dating sites.

He added 'Ok I know that the big mainstream dating sites have a million members or more and we have thousands but it doesn't follow that a dog lover will stand a better chance of finding a dog loving soul mate on one of the big dating sites. Trying to find a dog lover, especially a male dog lover, on one of the big dating sites can be very difficult. It's hard enough finding a woman who mentions she loves dogs on one of those sites. And many men are reluctant to admit they love dogs because they think this admission makes them appear effeminate.

Since the majority of true dog lovers will not date someone who isn't a dog lover then really they stand a much better chance of finding a dog loving soul mate on our dating site since all our members are dog lovers. True, they may not find their dog lover soul mate in their own home town, but since our poll shows that the vast majority will travel to the ends of the earth to find love then really that doesn't matter. In any case there is an excellent chance they will find someone in their own country and a good chance of finding someone in their own state.'

Usually the process involved in getting to know someone on www.doglover.biz is firstly a flirt to let someone know they are interested in them. This takes the form of a short standard message designed to break the ice and find out if their feelings are reciprocated. Members can choose the message they like ranging from the romantic to the humorous. If the recipient responds positively then emails are exchanged and after that usually telephone conversations take place.

Online dating is a great way to get to know someone because each party can control the pace and decide when the time is right to make telephone contact and finally arrange the first meeting - usually a coffee somewhere.

If the distances are great - for example the two people live in different countries then the process may be different. Longer telephone conversations usually take place and it is possible to get to know someone very well in this way so that when it comes to arranging the first meeting there will be a good chance of success. Nowadays this needn't cost the earth and in fact by using Skype on mobile phones or computers this is likely to be free.

In addition Webcams can give a great insight into what the real person sounds and looks like so if there is a strong attraction using this medium then it's likely there will be a strong attraction face to face in the real world too!

Karen Sunde, the respected American playwright and screenwriter said 'to love is to receive a glimpse of heaven' and perhaps that's why, more than anything else, our members are prepared to travel to the ends of the earth to find it!
