Cosmetic dentist in Grosse Pointe, Smile Enhancement Studio, has recently launched a new online patient education service in conjunction with their web development experts, Officite.

December 23, 2009 (FPRC) -- GROSSE POINTE WOODS, MI – Popular Grosse Pointe Woods dentist, The Smile Enhancement Studio, is now offering its patients expanded online education resources, helping them to better understand various aspects of dental care.

Smile Enhancement Studio is a leading dentist in Grosse Pointe specializing in cosmetic dentistry in a unique spa-like atmosphere. Treated in the dental spa environment of the Studio, patients receive high quality treatment from Dr. Mary Sue Stonisch. Dr. Stonisch is one of only 36 women in the world to achieve accreditation from peers at the American Academy of Cosmetic Dentistry. Following the tagline “Mind, Body, Smile,” the award-winning dentist and her practice are committed to create perfect smiles for patients in a tranquil and relaxing environment.

Having established a unique presence in the aesthetic dental field, Dr. Stonisch and her Studio have now expanded their online services and are providing education resources to new and prospective Smile Enhancement Studio patients.

“Patients often have a number of questions related to their dental and oral care but don’t always feel comfortable asking them during a dental visit. Our new online education resources allows them to get answers at home while providing them with high quality, completely accurate information on dental care and procedures,” says Mary Sue Stonisch of Smile Enhancement Studio.

The new online patient education resources are an added feature of the firm’s newly upgraded website. The new website for the Smile Enhancement Studio has been developed and designed by premier dental web design company, Officite. Officite are nation leading experts providing website solutions and strategies to various dental clients. In addition to providing creatively designed niche websites for dental practices, Officite also provides other web development and internet marketing solutions in order to maximize the performance of client websites.

“When designing and developing websites for our clients, we always keep in mind what a dental patient would like to see in their dentist’s websites. From the feedback we gathered, we learned that many patients would really appreciate some extra education about various dental issues. As a result, we are now designing and developing client websites to include educational resources so dental patients can have access to all the information they need,” says Glenn Lombardi, President and CEO of Officite.

As a cosmetic dentist in Grosse Pointe, Smile Enhancement Studio is well known among its patients for being innovators in the dental field. The online patient education services on the practice’s new website is an excellent new feature that will further enhance the patient experience on the new and improved Smile Enhancement Studio website.
