Singer and Songwriter VintageVixenn is in the studio recording her debut album Nice Girls Act Bad.

January 4, 2010 (FPRC) -- Houston, Texas After an arduous search for the perfect matrimony between record producer and promising young singer, VintageVixenn, started production on the anticipated album entitled 'Nice Girls Act Bad.' 'I Make Siren music,' VintageVixenn proclaims, 'music for the divas on the dance-floor. And I love feel-good music, so my album will be an eclectic mix of organic and electronic sounds under a velvety smooth voice and my lyrics are always fresh.'

Songs on the Album roster are the classic dancehall, 'OOO My! (unlady like),' and the soulful organic guitar track entitled 'He think he slick.' Both of these songs were produced and mixed by Wil the Great of New Orleans Most Wanted. VintageVixenn's management is happy to announce they are in talks with the a major Hollywood record producer. This producer is responsible for over 11 platinum selling singles and is interested in creating VintageVixenns radio single. Troy Joyner, her senior brother and personal manager promised to reveal who the producer is by January 15th when the deal is inked.

VintageVixenn, also known as Sara Joyner, hails from Minneapolis, Minnesota. Her grandmother describes her as an eccentric old soul. Sara always proclaimed that she wished she were a teenager in the 50's, 60's and 70's, as she loved the style and music of the eras. This love would transcend into the one of kind image and vibe of VintageVixenn the sultry singer, songwriter, fashion model and actress. In addition to her album release she is also working on a pin-up style calender and a line of t-shirts.
