

Barina Craft Launches Home Bar Furniture Site Redesign

Barina Craft, a manufacturer of bar furniture for home, announces a redesign of its website for Summer 2010.

March 11, 2010 (FPRC) -- Dublin, OH - Barina Craft, a manufacturer of bar furniture for home, announces a redesign of its website for Summer 2010.

This new integration of features and layout allows easier navigation and organization during the planning phase and for future reference. The decision to incorporate a bar room or pub area in your house for entertaining is an involved process requiring the coordination of many aspects as the changes are long lasting and may affect the future resale value of your home.

Most notable is probably the additional bookmarking and sharing capabilities. A unified footer design makes organizing your project more convenient. These third party services make collecting all your ideas in one location very easy to reference and share. Ongoing research can be easily categorized and analyzed. Soliciting feedback and opinion from a trusted friend can be invaluable in moving plans forward and affirming decisions.

New articles, photos, tips and ideas for home bars are included to help address the issues. Initial planning topics on interior design, bar stool selection, wood furniture care and a comprehensive frequently asked questions section are included. Another important change is the larger page size. A steady decline of visitors accessing the site using narrower monitor widths prompted the decision. Increased font size, images and layout flexibility enhances the shopping experience visually and functionally.

Founded in 2007, Barina Craft's home bars furniture may be purchased directly through their website at <http://www.barinacraft.com> and is shipped throughout the contiguous United States. All furniture is finely handcrafted by artisans in the USA and constructed of solid steam bent mahogany and other premium hardwoods. March 11, 2010 (FPRC) --
