

MiamiCulinaryTours.com, A Site Showcasing Traditional and Latin Fusion Food Tours in Miami Announced The Launch of a Foodie Blog

Miami's food scene intelligent coverage range from small eateries to five star restaurant at The Urban Food Critic Blog

March 24, 2010 (FPRC) -- Miami Culinary Tour's announced the launch of an innovative food blog offering more than just a start rating review. Food bloggers embark in a Miami food tour adventure to discover trend-setting, creative, talented chefs and cooks across the city to review their most delicious creations.

As Miami proves that culinary genius can be found all across the magic city, from small neighborhood eateries to five star hotels, the Urban Food Critic blog located at www.miamiculinarytours.com/blog is a talented group of passionate urban food bloggers documenting every enchanting bite they take in town.

Adventurous and unexpectedly delicious combinations is what the Urban Food Critics are continuously seeking. Comprehensive reviews are written to report the details of a specific dish and not to be described in five words or judge a restaurant experience as so many other sites are currently doing. Included on each comprehensive dish review are photos of the specific food savored, and a short video to showcase the place ambiance.

"We believe in sustainable practices and make every effort to visit local eateries and restaurants that support and value our local community, celebrating the diversity of our neighborhoods and their traditional food costumes." says Anabella Toris, a foodie blogger that recently joined the team.

The Urban Food Critic serves as a gateway to the Miami food restaurant scene, as well as a destination for those in search of comprehensive reviews where readers can see the dish in details, watch a video of the place and comment. With all of the latest technologies, The Urban Food Critic Blog makes it easier for followers to comment using their existing Facebook, Twitter and Google Gmail accounts.

The Blog was founded with the basic idea of narrating the food each blogger eats in and around Miami including neighborhoods such as South Beach, Coral Gables, Little Havana, Coconut Grove, Key Biscayne, North Miami and Little Haiti. We visit farmers' markets, local eateries, farms, delis, restaurants, coffee houses, ice cream shops and much more.

The bloggers at The Urban Food Critic Blog are committed to support restaurants serving locally produced meat and produce. As we grow in numbers and are more recognized for the work that we do, we will increase our support of non profit organizations that make a difference for the environment where growing and buying local produce is what they stand for.

About MiamiCulinaryTours.com

Miami Culinary Tours (www.miamiculinarytours.com) introduces a new idea to the streets of the magic city by showcasing two signature food tours; The Cuba Bonita Food Tour and The South

Beach Walking Foodie Tour. Offering gourmands seven food tastings of Traditional and Latin Fusion cuisine with an American culinary inspiration in each of the foodie tours.

Contact Information

For more information contact Gracielita Bella of Miami Culinary Tours, LLC
(<http://www.miamiculinarytours.com>)

Keywords

Miami food tour

food tours

foodie tours

You can read this press release online here