Leading Job Application Employment Form Site Allows You To Quickly Apply To Jobs For Over 400+ National Companies.

May 19, 2010 (FPRC) -- Job-Applications.com the leading free job application enablement site for first-time and entry-level jobs announced that their site www.job-applications.com is now aggregating and providing access to more than 50,000+ jobs, all of which are hiring right now. By using job-applications.com, anyone can quickly apply to over 400 of the nation's largest full-time and part-time positions for free.

'With unemployment still near double digits, you not only have to be aggressive in your job search but you have to be efficient with your time,' said Doug Crawford, President of Job-Applications.com. 'Our site is designed to allow you to quickly apply to multiple companies from one convenient web site without the need to drive from location to location just to collect applications.'

There really is a hidden job market, and it exists simply because HR departments cannot afford to post many of their first-time employment and part-time positions to traditional job boards because the job boards are too expensive for these types of roles. If you are looking for work solely on the major online job sites, you are falling far short of reaching all of the potential employment opportunities that are in your neighborhood. However, now with the increased employment coverage of job-applications.com, you can broadly tap into the hidden job market and reach jobs that you would otherwise miss because job-applications.com makes it easy to submit your employment application to hundreds of employers that are looking for great people right now.

Job-Applications.com makes it easy to apply to retailers like Walmart, Gap, Old Navy, Target, Kmart, BestBuy, Home Depot and Sears as well as restaurants such as Starbucks, McDonald's, Burger King, KFC, Chili's, Wendy's and many other quick service establishments. With hundreds of companies and tens of thousands of jobs, Job-Applications.com will help you to quickly find your next career.
