

Effective It Assets Management Becomes Even Easier with the New Version of Network Inventory Advisor

ClearApps released the new version of Network Inventory Advisor with enriched functionality for PC network management.

May 24, 2010 (FPRC) -- ClearApps released the new version of Network Inventory Advisor with enriched functionality for PC network management. 'Each time we receive the feedback from our valued clients we are planning to improve Network Inventory Advisor taking into account their feature requests' - says Jeff Mitchels, ClearApps CEO. The new version of Network Inventory Advisor with enriched functionality for PC network inventory is the best confirmation of these words.

Since Network Inventory Advisor 3.8, it's possible to build inventory report for selected group of nodes, not only for the whole network. It's extremely convenient when you monitor several networks. Among other improvements in the network building features we want to mention the possibility to import nodes from Active Directory organizational units, add new nodes from a text file and export nodes into internal format for backup, copying, transfer, sharing and other purposes.

The software inventory improvement also became the subject of development of the new version of Network Inventory Advisor. This time it includes even more items available for the software audit (such as Windows Firewall and Windows Defender details, IE version, product key, serial number and other details) and some additional opportunities for effective software report building.

All the improvements in the last major update as well as feature news can be found in the official company blog: <http://blog.clearapps.com/releases>

Free 15-day full-featured evaluation copy is available at the company website as a direct download (no requirements for your personal info or email address).
