

Ancient Astronaut Website Goes Online

Ancient astronaut investigator Morten St. George provides archaeological evidence and six new articles to support his book's alien contentions.

Fort Lauderdale, FL - June 26, 2010 - Author Morten St. George is proud to announce the creation of a website to promote his book Incantation of the Law Against Inept Critics: A Guide to Cryptic Thinking. The Morten St. George website, however, goes beyond highlighting the book's themes and quickly expands on his theories about an ancient astronaut and its intervention in human history.

On the Andean Sky God page, St. George writes "Archaeological evidence from the Andes overwhelming supports the theory of contact with an alien. The Andeans made hundreds of drawings of the alien. In great detail, these drawings depict the alien's fish-like face and mouth, its reptile-like eyes, its astronaut helmet replete with sunlight reflectors around the visor and air bubbles inside the visor, its four-fingered hands, its tri-pod tail, its front-mounted voice transmitter, not to mention those hand-held instruments that suddenly contracted and split open upon liftoff up into the sky." The website provides Tiwanaku depictions of the aquatic extraterrestrial.

But it does not stop there. St. George contends that the ancient astronaut was not content with merely visiting the Andeans. In the article Muhammad and the Angel of Light, he argues that the Islamic Qur'an was a creation of this same alien. And it does not stop there either. In the articles On the Origin of Jewish Mysticism, Parts I and II, he argues that two texts of the Kabbalah were likewise the creation of the sky god of the Andes. Why did the alien do it? St. George believes that these interventions set in motion cause-and-effect dynamics that would eventually lead to the technological age of contemporary times.
