June 29, 2010 (FPRC) -- POINCIANA, FL -- Golfers from around the United States are invited to check out one of the premier Florida golf communities. Solivita is celebrating their 10th year as a vibrant and exciting active adult retirement community.

In order to celebrate their 10th anniversary, the golf community has opened their doors to allow golfers to come and check out one of their two championship golf courses as part of their Discovery Days celebration for just $90 for a round of golf for two and a stay at Solivita.

Marty Cohn, of Solivita, said, "Our championship golf courses are perfect additions to the retirement community. Many who have come to be a part of Solivita have found the convenience of having the semi-private golf courses within a short distance of their home to be a wonderful aspect of living within our community."

55+ communities in Florida are renowned as the best destinations in the country for retirees. Solivita has earned the reputation of being one the best locations because of the many amenities they offer to residents and their location within just a few minutes of some of Florida top attractions. Golfers will also be quite pleased with The Oaks Golf Course and The Cypress Golf Course.

The Oaks Golf Course was designed by Ron Garl, a leading authority in the golf industry and recipient of the 'Golf Designer of the Year' award from the International Network of Golf. The course is surrounded by hundred-year-old oak hammocks which give this course its mystique. Combined with the colorful greenery and streams and lakes, The Oaks at Stonegate is a golfer's dream. The 18-hole, 7000 yard course is sure to be a great golfing experience for every golfer at all levels of ability.

The Cypress Golf Course is a 6800 yard, 18-hole course that was originally designed by Robert Von Hagge and Bruce Devlin and recently renovated and redesigned by George Clifton in 2006. The design is highlighted by well-bunkered greens for which the original architects are famous. The rustic course sits in between cypress trees and beautiful lakes and has been a top destination for golf since it opened in 1972.

Ride around the course on an eco-friendly electric golf cart that has become a part of Solivita's movement toward a 'greener' community. After the round of golf, guests can sit back and relax at the The Grille at Stonegate where they can choose from one of three restaurants in which to eat located in Solivita's Village Center. Contact Solivita today to schedule your visit to the golf community to play on the championship golf courses.
