

Directrooms.com – Collectors Gather for Prague’s Famous Stamp and Coin Show in September 2010

Dealers and experts in coins stamps and ephemera plus thousands of collectors will ravel to Prague for the annual Collector International Fair for Stamps, Coins & Accessories.

July 21, 2010 (FPRC) -- One of the largest and most important collector’s fairs, Prague’s Collector International Fair for Stamps, Coins & Accessories will be held 2 to 4 September 2010 in the Prague Exhibition Centre. The show’s move to this new, ultra modern facility is expected to please exhibitors and visitors alike.

The Collector fair has risen to become an essential event for all those interested in coins, stamps and ephemera, with respected dealers and experts in the field gathering rare and unique examples for display and sale. Collectable gems also feature at the show, and collectors can have their acquisitions valued for free.

The new venue boasts 4,500 parking spaces and excellent public transport links to downtown Prague. International collectors’ magazines are offering free tickets and paid tickets can be purchased at the box office on the day at a cost of 80 CZK per day. Due to demand, hotels in Prague located close to the venue are expected to be fully booked, according to DirectRooms.com.

Exhibitors and collectors at this type of event often prefer a hotel room within a short distance of the venue, making early reservation through an online site such as More than 12,000 collectors are expected to arrive for the show, putting a strain on available accommodation.

Major collectors and antiques shows draw large numbers of collectors to the cities in which they are held.

According to Lek Boonlert, marketing head of DirectRooms.com, “Booking well in advance is the best way to avoid disappointment at events such as this.”
