

DirectRooms.com - Beijing International Cultural Tourism Festival 2010

The Beijing International Cultural Tourism Festival is being held from 20th September to 30th September 2010.

August 4, 2010 (FPRC) -- This festival is now a major part of the festival season in China and is considered to be one of the most spectacular events. There are many wonderful attractions at the festival but the most extravagant is considered to be the Dressing Parade.

People from all around the world dressed in their different country's national costumes will walk, march or dance in the parade together. This makes for an absolutely stunning site and is a must for your camera. There are also lots of varied cultural activities for the tourists to take part in. They have loads of fun trying out the many activities from the different nations around the world. The Beijing International Cultural Tourism Festival is considered to be "the" Carnival in China.

The tourists will also be able to see many famous art troupes from both China and the rest of the world. Performers flock to play a part in this festival and appear in "the" Carnival in China. These troupes are very colourful and fit in nicely with the Dressing Parade. Their expertise is amazing and many of their acts are simply breathtaking.

Beijing is becoming one of the world's fastest growing holiday destinations and with festivals like this you can see why. The locals of Beijing are very friendly and make you feel very welcome. There are many places to stay in the area, from the smallest to the finest hotels Beijing has to offer.
