

Akers Consulting Group Launches Winning Team Systems Website and Book Series

Winning Team Systems launches their new website and business leadership book series aimed at helping current and future leaders develop Winning Team environments.

August 5, 2010 (FPRC) -- Akers Consulting Group, LLC announced the launch of Winning Team Systems, a new division of the organization that is focused on helping current and future business leaders build and maintain high-performing teams, and to help leaders guide team members through organizational change.

The new Winning Team Systems website, <http://winningteamsystems.com> houses a large repository of proven tips, techniques and tools for leaders to leverage in their quest to improve their organizations. The Free WTS Newsletter provides subscribers current and relevant information, articles, quotes and success stories to help facilitate the development of Winning Teams.

In conjunction with the website, the Winning Team Systems book series was unveiled this week. Authored by David Akers, the first installment in the series, "WIN! A Leader's Guide to Building Winning Teams," became available for purchase. The book can be ordered directly from the Winning Team Systems website, Amazon.com, and other online and retail book outlets across the country.

Akers Consulting Group LLC president David Akers said of the launch, "We at Akers Consulting Group are excited to deliver these tools to people who are currently in, or desire to be in leadership positions. Organizations that leverage the Winning Team System philosophy will benefit from increased morale, productivity, sales and profits."

Winning Team Systems and Akers Consulting Group LLC are based in Royersford, Pennsylvania. Akers Consulting Group LLC specializes in helping business owners and leaders, providing consulting, coaching, training, marketing and web services.
