

Quality Claims Management Shows How to Make an Insurance Inventory Video with Your Own Camera

Quality Claims Management posted instructions and free spreadsheets to enable anyone to easily create their own insurance inventory video. After a disaster - fire, flood, hurricanes, etc., your insurance company will require you to put together a detailed list of what you owned and now needs to be replaced. You will need to create a list of what was destroyed, what it was worth, when and where you bought it, and how much it will cost to replace.

November 4, 2010 (FPRC) -- Quality Claims Management Corporation, San Diego's leading Public Insurance Adjusting company, has posted a free "how to create an insurance inventory video" guide to using your camcorder or digital camera to create a Home Insurance Inventory.

After a disaster - fire, flood, hurricanes, etc., your insurance company will require you to put together a detailed list of what you owned and now needs to be replaced. You will need to create a list of what was destroyed, what it was worth, when and where you bought it, and how much it will cost to replace.

According to Ronald Reitz, President of Quality Claims, "Trying to create an accurate insurance inventory list from memory is very difficult, especially when coupled with the strain and chaos associated with surviving a disaster."

There are many commercial services that can create a video inventory for you, but you can save a lot of money by doing it yourself. The free guide - coupled with Quality Claim's free downloadable insurance inventory spreadsheets, makes it easy for you and your family to create a detailed report that can save you tens of thousands of dollars and endless hours of time after a disaster.
