

Miami Culinary Tours Partners with the Miami Design Preservation League (MDPL) to Offer Unique Culinary Experiences

Combining forces to offer both local and visitors an “up close and personal” experience of South Beach’s most iconic properties while savoring the diverse cuisine of the area.

May 9, 2011 (FPRC) -- (Miami, FL) - For the first time ever, the Miami Design Preservation League (MDPL), the only non-profit organization in the United States devoted to preserving, protecting, and promoting the cultural, social, economic, environmental and architectural integrity of the Miami Beach Architectural Historic District will now be offering in addition to their popular Art Deco District Walking Tour, the South Beach Food Tour and the Little Havana Food Tour by Miami Culinary Tours - the Miami pioneer's of culinary tours in the area. Tickets are on sale now at the newly renovated, state-of-the-art Art Deco Welcome Center located at 001 Ocean Drive Miami Beach, FL. MDPL will also be offering both food tours on its website at <http://www.mdpl.org>.

“It was only the right thing to do for us to approach MDPL as we owe our huge success to them. Their dedicated team works endlessly to preserve the largest collection of Art Deco properties in the world - enabling Miami Culinary Tours to offer an exciting historical, architectural and culinary journey.” says Miami Culinary Tours' founder, Grace Della. “With every ticket purchased through MDPL, you - our fellow foodie - will be helping with the continuous efforts to keep the integrity of a unique historic neighborhood. A portion of your ticket will be donated to MDPL so that - all of us together - can help support the continuous efforts of the organization. I was recently asked to be part of MDPL' Marketing and Communications Committee board - it is an honor to be able to be involved with such honorable organization.”

About Miami Culinary Tours

Miami Culinary Tours offers the Little Havana Food Tour, the South Beach Food Tour and soon to be launch the first Miami City Food Tours. Almost unknown until recently, food tours in Miami are steadily conquering the palates of the most adventurous foodies worldwide. It is truly one of the Miami tours most unique and delicious experiences. The food tours are conducted by passionate, food-obsessed personalities with vast knowledge of the Art Deco district and the efforts that MDPL continuously does to preserve the magnificent properties in the area. Miami Culinary Tours' intends to provide attendees with a “one of kind” experience that is enjoyable, interesting and engaging while savoring the local flavor. Some of the incredible restaurants participating craft unique dishes so that participants can taste what is like to be a local in just a few hours.”

About the Miami Design Preservation League:

A non-profit organization that preserves, protects and promotes the Miami Beach Art Deco District. MDPL conducts daily Art Deco Walking Tours at 10:30 am. What they fight for: An advocacy program attempts to influence public policy and public actions in a direction consistent with a group's mission. MDPL's advocacy program is guided by its advocates' aim to act consistently with MDPL's mission statement: Miami Design Preservation League (MDPL) is a non-profit organization devoted to preserving, protecting, and promoting the cultural, social, economic, environmental and architectural integrity of the Miami Beach Architectural Historic District and all other areas of the City of Miami Beach where historic preservation is a concern.
