

Visual Drafting Package to Design Web Pages

Visual tool to create Web Pages in no time and easy

August 20, 2011 (FPRC) -- Ines Software has issued new application - Visual drafting package to design Web pages.

Resolution-independent vector sprites allow for fast creation pictures that may be altered with no loss of quality. You may transfer and change its settings over and over again while retaining its original clarity and crispness with no affecting other items in the animation.

Any layer can be created with multiple live effects. Live effects are fully customizable. If you develop any adjust to the sprite, the look automatically updates. You may apply shadow to sprite, design it flame, display it with opacity and much more.

With Artistic Text you have character-level control over all content attributes, including color, outline, and filling. It may be drawn with shadow and live effects, using any font that your computer has. To reduce loading time for page viewers, the program optimizes images by getting rid of superfluous material. The optimization toolkit has simple interface and aids quickly evaluate different picture formats to build the smallest image.

Resolution-independent vector sprites can be resized without harm of quality. The filling gradients and patterns enable to create visual effects with amazing outlook. The software has simple-to-apply toolkits to make custom animated buttons. Creates needed images and Java script.

A rollover button turns own image once cursor travels across it. The rollover button really includes two or three graphics: the normal state picture, cursor over graphic, which occurs once the cursor walks around the button, and mouse down picture which occurs while user clicks the button. Application contains a tool called Web Album that lets you computerize complex jobs of including graphics, developing thumbnails (a miniature representation of a scene, usually containing a link to a full-sized primary image), and setting correct hyperlinks to the primary graphics. The software has several thumbnail frames to create a creative and elegant Web Album.
