

Golf Company Seeks Distributors For Premier Product

My Pure Stroke, a golf product company based out of Southern California is seeking to expand it's distributor base and is currently accepting applications for new distributors.

August 31, 2011 (FPRC) -- Golf product company My Pure Stroke (mypurestroke.com) announced today that they are offering distributorships of their product, the My Pure Stroke putting training aid, to golf product companies or any business that currently sells golf related products either online, through a brick and mortar location or both.

The company's President and co-inventor David Hopkins explains "We want to be able to expand and offer our product to more people, other than the visitors to our website."

The product launched about one year ago and has been lauded by professional golfers and amateur golfers alike. It has a simple design, is affordable and effective.

"So far," Hopkins adds, "we have had great success with distributors and are interested in expanding this part of our business." "I think because the product is so easy to use and understand" Hopkins adds "that practically anyone can see the benefits in a very short amount of time."

The product can be used a few hours per week and results can be seen as quickly as within the first week of usage. "The My Pure Stroke putting aid has been used by retirees, pro golfers, amateur golfers and young kids." Hopkins explains. "Almost every time results can be seen in their putting games, it is amazing."

Distributors will be able to purchase small, minimum amounts of the product at a wholesale rate and sell for suggested retail pricing of $129.00 to $149.00. Final costs and setting of actual retail prices can also be determined on a "per distributor" level.

"There is room for good margin, we have a great relationship with our manufacturer and would like to put the product in the hands of as many distributors as possible." Hopkins says.

Currently, there are no exclusivity agreements in terms of geographical locations and distributorships are open.

Anyone interested in becoming a distributor is encouraged to visit the company's website at <http://www.mypurestroke.com> and click on the "Distributors Wanted" link.

Contact Information

For more information contact David Hopkins of <http://> (<http://>)
951-522-5218

Keywords

golf
golf products
putting training aid

You can read this press release online here