

Online-Spread-Betting.com Launches 200 New Share Trading Guides

Online-Spread-Betting.com has launched more than 200 new guides for spread betting on shares.

September 1, 2011 (FPRC) -- Online-Spread-Betting, a financial trading site that specialises in the derivative of spread betting, has launched a brand new range of guides for spread betting on shares.

Emma Franklin, editor of www.Online-Spread-Betting.com, says that the latest improvements come following the recent volatility in the financial markets, coupled with spread betting's increasing popularity amongst financial traders.

"Spread betting is becoming an increasingly popular method of speculating on the financial markets. Over the past five years, we have seen a lot more speculators choose spread betting as their chosen method of trading the financial markets.

"And recently, of course, we have also seen a lot more volatility in the financial markets. Share trading markets, for example, have seen a lot of instability over the past few years. As a result, we felt that it was important to ensure that the site's visitors remain as well-informed as possible on the subject. That is why we have introduced over 200 shares spread betting guides."

This is the latest improvement to this site which offers spread betting tips, daily market analysis and commentary on the FX market; earlier in the year they launched a comprehensive redesign of the site.

The in-depth trading guides cover a range of stocks from across the globe: from shares on the bigger stock markets such as the Dow Jones, the FTSE 100 and the German stock market, to equities in less traded markets such as those of South Africa, India and Holland. Franklin, however, says it's not just about quantity.

"Obviously we've released a huge number of trading guides, however we maintained a strong focus on quality. These guides cover the basics of financial spread betting, which spread betting companies offer certain markets, and more specific areas such as where to find candlestick charts. We want to stress that even though we've released a vast array of trading guides, our focus remain on quality over quantity."
