

New Website Designers In London Join Marketing Quotes

This week over 20 website designers in London joined Marketing Quotes in order to help businesses in London with website design and build. Many of these website designers are based close to central London with quick access for clients in central London.

September 17, 2011 (FPRC) -- 23 website designers in London joined Marketing Quotes (the marketing price comparison websites) this week in order to help London based clients with website design in build.

Many of the requirements for website design were from new companies in the London area, businesses that did not previously have websites in place and needed something new and simple to be set up.

Despite the difficult economic climate, London has tens of thousands of businesses and many of these new businesses are looking for marketing agencies to help them with website design, development and SEO work.

Marcel Blackburn of Marketing Quotes commented 'most businesses that are based in London are looking to work with website designers in London as opposed to one that is based in Cambridge, Manchester or even overseas. Even though other web designers may be cheaper, nothing beats working with a local website designer so that you can visit them if needs be'.

Most of the web design requirements have been from smaller companies that are looking for brand new websites, however there have been a number of larger companies that are looking for local website developers (to help with expanding and developing existing websites and adding additional features.

Anne Richards of Marketing Quotes added 'many larger companies do seek to expand and improve their existing websites and may need to call on external experts to handle development and building work that may require programming and techie knowledge'.

There are over 4,000 website designers in London of varying size, from students that are operating out of their bedrooms (who charge very low design rates) up to larger designers that work with global firms.

Anne Richards added 'it is great to seen new website designer come on board and join Marketing Quotes, it gives a great variety of skill to new clients and variety is the spice of life'.

Marketing Quotes has around 2,000 of the 4,000 website designers in London registered on its website and as new web designers are starting up each week (fresh from college and university) clients do have a great choice of what sort of design agency they choose to work with.

Contact Information

For more information contact dave blackburn of Marketing Quotes
(<http://www.marketingquotes.co.uk>)

448452249061

Keywords

Website designers in London

website developers

marketing agencies

You can read this press release online here