

ChooseYourSecurity.co.uk Opens It's Doors

A new Security Company website has opened it's doors - aiming to be a fresh and valuable service for companies and customers by keeping costs down for companies and being completely free for customers.

September 21, 2011 (FPRC) -- Brand new Security Companies comparison website ChooseYourSecurity.co.uk has opened it's doors for the first time today (September 21, 2011) following substantial growth in other sectors.

ChooseYourSecurity.co.uk gives consumers the opportunity to receive up to 4 free quotes from local suppliers of CCTV, Burglar Alarms and Secure Door Entry Systems. Therefore the time and effort involved in seeking out and calling, emailing, providing details repeatedly, etc. has potentially been dramatically reduced.

The new branch of the existing company aims to not only help potential new customers to obtain no-obligation quotes, but additionally to assist security companies to keep advertising costs down – which they can in turn pass on to the customer where appropriate.

Company Managing Director, Alan Wilson says, “Even though markets are crowded with people vying for advertising space (which drives many smaller companies out of business), we aim to keep costs down for everyone – while keeping ChooseYourSecurity.co.uk a great value service for consumers – so it's an all round win-win”.

"The parent company was initially started to provide a cost effective service to the driver training industry. As it became apparent that it was being hailed as a good value 'breath of fresh air' in a highly priced market, the decision to expand was a rather straight forward one."

ChooseYourSecurity.co.uk is initially expanding in and around the midlands (Birmingham, Coventry, Leamington, Wolverhampton) prior to stretching out the service on a national level.
