October 18, 2011 (FPRC) -- Deerfield Beach, FL ... The Laser Warehouse, the industry's leading seller of used aesthetic lasers, and other used cosmetic laser equipment, has recently doubled the number of cosmetic laser repair technicians that service and repair cosmetic lasers, cosmetic laser handpieces and IPL equipment. Aesthetic laser systems and IPL equipment often break down or experience software failures to their computerized components. Replacing equipment can be costly; however with properly trained and certified technicians, non-functioning cosmetic laser equipment can be readily repaired. Due to the tremendous growth in the aesthetic industry, The Laser Warehouse has doubled the amount of certified laser technicians to meet requests by aesthetic practitioners to repair broken equipment.

The Laser Warehouse's cosmetic laser repair technicians are fully certified by the Board of Laser Safety, and the Laser Institute of America in repair of cosmetic lasers and IPL equipment. The Laser Warehouse's technicians are specialists who are qualified to diagnose, repair and if necessary replace OEM parts for the industry's leading brands of cosmetic laser equipment and cosmetic laser handpieces such as Palomar, Syneron, Alma, Candela, Hoya Con Bio, Lumenis and Cutera. Common repairs include replacement of crystals and diodes, replacement of tubing and o-rings, replacement of flash lamps, mirror calibrations, cooling system repairs, computer board and circuit board repairs.

Preventive maintenance services are also available for these systems and are highly recommended to keep equipment functioning and performing at optimal levels. The company also stocks a multitude of parts, IPL flash lamps and filters as part of its repair services.

The Laser Warehouse is dedicated to delivering high quality and reliable services to its customers. Having highly skilled cosmetic laser repair technicians on staff is a strategic complement to The Laser Warehouse's existing resale operations for used cosmetic laser and used aesthetic laser equipment.
