

Phuket.Net – Attend the Old Phuket Festival in January 2012

Phuket.Net is pleased to confirm the date for the Old Phuket Festival, which will start on the 16th January 2012 and run for three days in the heart of the Old Town of Phuket.

October 21, 2011 (FPRC) -- This popular Old Phuket festival is now in its 13th year and is synchronised with the Chinese New Year celebrations. The main thoroughfares for watching the festival events and displays will be along the Krabi, Thalang and Phuket roads and also the Soi Rommanee in the heart of the Old Town. Several streets will be closed to traffic during the festival, including the Soi Rommanee and Thalang Roads.

Events in the Old Phuket Festival include such colourful celebrations as the Phuket Baba Light Show, when Chinese lanterns are paraded along the dark streets. There will also be a rickshaw tour and Chinese operatic recitals, Chinese folk dancing and a variety of cultural parades.

The main celebrations officially begin at 3.00pm and go on until midnight on each day of the festival. Visitors travelling to the events by car are advised to park well away from the congested centre of town.

There are many hotels in and around Phuket that offer the perfect base for attending the many colourful events that make up this famous festival. Whether travelling singly, in a group or as a family, hotels in Phuket offer a warm welcome and amenities to make every visitor feel at home and get their holiday off to a great start.

For further information contact the Tourism Authority of Thailand Phuket Office.

###

About Phuket.Net

Founded in 2007, Phuket.Net Real Estate is a residential brokerage firm specialising in holiday and investment properties on the island of Phuket on Thailand's Andaman coast.

Contact Information

For more information contact Lek Nittaya of Phuket.Net (<http://www.phuket.net>)
(+66) 076 620 055

Keywords

Old Phuket Festival

You can read this press release online here