

Cobalt Chrome Ring 2011 Award Winner

The Williams Cobalt Chrome Ring, by Heavy Stone Rings, was awarded the prestigious JCK Jewelers Choice Award for Best Mens Jewelry

November 21, 2011 (FPRC) -- Modesto, CA. The WILLIAMS Cobalt Chrome Ring was voted by jewelers around the world as the winner of the prestigious JCK Jewelers Choice Award for Best Mens Jewelry. This cobalt ring measures a hefty 10mm wide, and features a series of cobalt chrome plates secured in place with 14K rose gold rivets. The cobalt plates have a soft satin finish. On the outer edges of the ring, the cobalt is polished to a high shine for a nice contrast with the satin finish on the plates.

The WILLIAMS Cobalt Chrome Ring is designed and hand fabricated by Heavy Stone Rings, located in Utah. Heavy Stone Rings takes pride in manufacturing cobalt rings and tungsten rings here in the United States, something most jewelry designers no longer do. The inspiration for the WILLIAMS Cobalt Chrome Ring came from the century old New York City subway systems with its rustic riveted iron trusses and beams. There is a masculine allure in the aged industrial metal work of these iron plates and rivets and Heavy Stone Rings sought to create a masculine men's ring that would evoke similar feelings.

Equally impressive as the unique design is the craftsmanship required to make this ring. Each ring is meticulously constructed by hand by an artisan craftsman, and consists of 27 individual parts.

Currently the WILLIAMS Cobalt Chrome Ring by Heavy Stone Rings can be found at finer independent jewelry stores and online at Titanium-Jewelry.com. Also found at Titanium-Jewelry.com is The Williams Black Cobalt Chrome Ring. Similar to the award winner, but the plates are of Black Zirconium and the rivets are of 18K yellow gold, thus creating a very striking contrast.
