

Top-Rated Gynecomastia NYC Practice, ACSNY, Launches New Gynecomastia New York Website

Advanced Cosmetic Surgery of New York announces their newly re-designed Gynecomastia website for teens, adult men, and body builders suffering from this condition.

December 2, 2011 (FPRC) -- COMMACK, NY – Advanced Cosmetic Surgery of New York has released its one-stop website aimed at educating teens and adult men about gynecomastia and the treatments available at their Gynecomastia New York medical practices. Gynecomastia is a condition that causes the male breasts to enlarge, causing embarrassment and self-esteem issues. For teens, this condition can be especially crippling to their social development. Many male adolescents usually withdraw from social activities, do not participate in sports and avoid situations where their condition would likely be exposed such as during swimming activities and P.E. class. The condition can show up any time during the teen years and is caused by hormonal changes.

Adult males with gynecomastia experience the same social trauma as adolescents but with more far-reaching ramifications to their lives. Often times, they avoid social and intimate situations, hide underneath baggy clothes, stop working out and generally abstain from any situation where their condition may be seen by someone. ACSNY's Gynecomastia NYC adult patients can be of any age, but can be younger than usual if they are engaged in the use of recreational drugs, are using anabolic steroids, or are taking certain prescription medications. Most often, however, this condition develops between the ages of 50 and 80 and is generally caused by hormonal changes due to aging.

At Advanced Cosmetic Surgery of New York, Drs. Emmanuel Asare and Theodore Diktaban have developed a revolutionary, minimally-invasive laser treatment for their Gynecomastia New York patients using lasers and only local anesthesia. The corrective procedure involves no scarring, the use of SmartLipo laser liposuction, and gentle removal of excess breast glands for patients who have too much glandular tissue. This unique laser technology allows for minimal blood loss, very little bruising, tightening of the skin, and a normal chest profile. For patients who undergo this minimally invasive treatment, they experience less post-op discomfort and faster healing.

The new website, GynecomastiaNewYork.net, now contains a brand-new educational video about gynecomastia and the unique treatment offered by Drs. Asare and Diktaban. Additionally, there is a new before and after photo gallery, FAQs section, educational articles about the condition and its causes as well as patient-specific sections for adolescents, adults, and body builders. They have also redesigned their practice logo to better reflect their unique accomplishment in staying one step ahead of the current methods used in male breast reduction surgery. Gynecomastia New York patients from every walk of life and age bracket will find that the new website has everything they need to take that first step in making an appointment for a free consultation with the experts at Advanced Cosmetic Surgery of New York.

Advanced Cosmetic Surgery of New York is located at 5036 Jericho Turnpike, Commack, NY 11725. They also have locations in Manhattan and Queens.
