

New Spread Betting Company Review Section Launched by CleanFinancial.com

The spread betting website cleanfinancial.com has launched a brand new section as part of on-going improvements to the site.

December 12, 2011 (FPRC) -- The spread betting website cleanfinancial.com has launched a brand new section as part of on-going improvements to the site.

The new spread betting company review section, which the site has been working on for over 3 months, reviews a range of spread trading firms.

'We've been working on the new section for 3 months,' said Jenna Cutly, editor at CleanFinancial.com. 'There are a range of spread betting companies that offer traders and investors the opportunity to speculate on the financial markets.

'Some of them are similar, however many of the products and services differ, which is why we've introduced this comprehensive new review. We want to help spread bettors identify these differences.'

The section, launched this month, covers a wide range of areas, and opens with a price review comparing over 25 spread betting markets. In financial spread betting a primary cost for investors is the width of the 'spread'. Therefore the price comparison reviews the spread sizes for the most popular markets including stock market indices such as the FTSE 100 and Wall St, forex spread betting markets such as GBP/USD and EUR/GBP and commodities such as gold and oil. It also covers both daily and futures markets.

Spread bettors who are interested in specific firms can drill down and look at more specific areas. This includes details such as whether the company offers CFD trading, mobile trading platforms, price alerts (which alert a spread bettor when markets hit certain levels) as well as what types of trading order are available.

Charting packages are also reviewed; the new section not only looks at which companies offer charts/analysis, but also what types of analysis users can quickly glean from the charts.

'We've been working on this section for a long time,' continued Cutly. 'We understand that, with the current economic crisis continuing to trouble traders, spread bettors are looking for the products and services that suit their spread trading strategy. Our aim is to help them find it.'

The new section is available now, for more information, see CleanFinancial.com.

About Clean Financial

www.CleanFinancial.com is a spread betting website which brings you the latest movements in the financial markets. It accommodates both the novice investor and the advanced trader alike, with daily analysis, spread betting offers, daily spread betting tips, trading guides and more.

The new section looks at a number of companies such as GFT and Financial Spreads as well as a number of markets, including indices, commodities, forex, bonds and interest rates.

Investors should note that spread betting is a leveraged financial product, it involves a high degree of risk and it is possible to incur losses that exceed their initial investment. Anyone investing through leveraged products should only trade with capital that they can afford to lose.

Before spread betting, investors should ensure that this form of trading matches their investment objectives, make sure they familiarise themselves with the risks and, where required, request independent financial advice.
