

The Lift Chair Guide Expands Consumer Review Section

Today, the Lift Chair Guide officially announced the expansion of their consumer review section of lift chairs. This offers a review of lift chairs manufactured by Golden Technologies and Pride Mobility, offering a powerful resource for consumers to learn what distributors don't want to tell you about different models of lift recliner.

December 16, 2011 (FPRC) -- The Lift Chair Guide, an informational website geared towards senior health information, announced today the expansion of their lift chair review section. The recent update includes two new lines of lift chairs, the Pride Heritage Collection and the Golden Comforter Series. This brings the total number of reviewed lift chairs at the Lift Chair Guide to over 15 models, with many of these includes submodels.

The lift chair review section honestly and accurately reviews lift chairs manufactured by Golden Technology and Pride Mobility, describing their standard features, available fabrics, prices, and other features. This not only involves explaining the value offered by these lift recliners, but also helps to put the different models in perspective.

Of particular notice is the in depth review of the GL-358 lift chair model, which includes 7 different models. This review compares and contrasts these different models in an easy to read format.

Steve Hedberg, the author of the review section, stated "I think this is one of the most important services we offer at the Lift Chair Guide. Many manufacturers and lift chair distributors make it quite difficult to figure out what is different about the different models. In the end, it is often because they are the same chair, with only a few minor changes. In our review section, we explain this to the consumer, allowing them to make an informed and intelligent choice, without having to rely on companies that are only interested in selling lift chairs."

The Lift Chair Guide has been helping consumers learn about lift chairs and other health topics, like senior arthritis, since 2007. In these years, it has grown to a powerful resource that includes information about Medicare, Medicaid, arthritis, and a number of other senior health topics. It is a powerful resource to all consumers looking for information about home medical equipment.
