

Sand Creek Massacre Lesson Plans Hammer Home Native Awareness and Peaceful Conflict Resolution

Sand Creek Massacre lesson plans hammer home native awareness and peaceful conflict resolution.

CENTENNIAL, CO (FPRC) May 18, 2007 -- Olympus Films+, LLC, a Centennial, Colorado based global writing/film/DVD company, has launched Sand Creek Massacre lesson plans for the public. Aimed at schools and to create native awareness in the United States and globally, the lesson plans include a curriculum and study guide.

Donald L. Vasicek, award-winning writer/filmmaker, and owner of Olympus Films+, LLC, said, "I was assisted with writing the lesson plans and curriculum by Loyce Hopkins, a Dallas educator. They are juxtaposed with our award-winning "The Sand Creek Massacre" film in that they trace Cheyenne and Arapaho history with Cheyenne and Arapaho oral histories recorded in the film. Our goal is to inform and to educate others, particularly students, about native awareness and peaceful conflict resolution."
